"Toyinza kuba na bantu obukadde 46 mu Uganda, nga kumpi abantu obukadde 30 bali mu bulimi n'otasomesa byabulimi"—Katikkiro Charles Peter Mayiga

Owek. Charles Peter Mayiga, Katikiro wa Buganda

Uganda's economy is predominantly rural and private sector driven with agriculture as the leading source of livelihood. The agriculture sector contribution to GDP has suffered a decline from 53 percent in the 1990s to 21 percent over the first decade of year 2000. Agriculture however remains the key driver and hope for poverty reduction as it contributes nearly 75 percent to national employment.

The National Development Plan III (2020-2025) aims to boost agriculture in terms of production and productivity. The key focus areas include agro processing, infrastructure improvement and creation of a skilled, healthier workforce. The third Agricultural sector strategic plan (ASSP) aims at sector transformation from subsistence to commercial with coffee as the priority commodity among others.

Buganda Kingdom campaign to revamp coffee production is in tandem. Since launching the "Mmwanyi terimba "campaign, Buganda Kingdom has registered tremendous growth in coffee production throughout the 18 Counties (Amasaza). The success is attributed to the community heed to Ssaabasajja Kabaka's call and campaign against poverty.

Coffee is still the leading cash crop with universal global demand. Buganda Kingdom ranks high among the producers of good quality tasty coffee. As a perennial crop, it provides employment right from the farm to cup. As partners in the coffee industry, we ought to do more from policy to practice. Regulation should not focus on restriction but more towards guidance on finance, quality assurance and market development. Buganda Kingdom is on track to revamp cooperatives and micro financing. CBS Radio has done a commendable job through PEWOSA, a community ecosystem that mobilises communities to directly engage in production supported by locally raised resources. The PEWOSA human and financial capital has been pivotal in social transformation based on agriculture improvement.

The holistic provisions of sustainable agriculture, once deployed to address gaps in quality inputs, mechanization and climate change resilience will see positives out of the National Development Plan.

I would like to appreciate the development mind of CBS Radio that has upheld its mission of community transformation since inception, 28 years ago. The Annual CBS PEWOSA agribusiness fair; one of the innovations is a step in the right direction.
